A shareholder must deliver or send the letter of transmittal, properly completed and duly executed, together with certificate(s) representing its common shares and all other required documents to the Company’s transfer agent at the address set forth in the letter of transmittal. It is each shareholder’s responsibility to ensure that the letter of transmittal is received by the transfer agent.

Upon return of a properly completed letter of transmittal, together with certificates evidencing the common shares, certificates for the appropriate number of new consolidated common shares will be issued at no charge. Non-registered shareholders should consult with their intermediaries for information on exchanging their common shares pursuant to the Consolidation.
